

EFFECT OF FREE TRADE.

The appalling condition of the finances of the United States that would follow the adoption of Free Trade is pictured in plain colors by Col. Robert Ingersoll. There is no misunderstanding such concise English as he uses. On being asked what the effect would be on labor if we adopted Free Trade, he replied: "If Free Trade could be adopted to-morrow there would be an instant shrinkage of values in this country. Probably the immediate loss would equal $20,000,000,000—that is to say, one third of the value of the country. No one can tell its extent. All things are so interwoven that to destroy one industry cripples another and the influence keeps on until it touches the circumference of human interests."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Republican State Committee yesterday adopted a resolution commending President Harrison's ability in handling the Chilean dispute. Where does Blaine get off?

"How to Manage husbands" is debated by Sorosis, and sundry futile suggestions are offered, such as "Hold your own tongue," "Tell him your secrets," and such like. George Du Maurier, in Punch, gives one receipt worth the whole batch of them, "Feed the brute."

A new compound of metals was recently discovered which so closely resembles gold, as to puzzle the keenest jeweler. Its weight is that of gold, and the acid tests are the same, except that the acid boils a trifle when applied to it, although when it is wiped off no spot is left. It is cheap and easily worked.

More than one third of the old men in England and Wales are paupers. A fiscal policy that does not give living wages will hardly permit a man to save anything for old age. It is hardly necessary to call attention to our own laborers, so many of whom own their own dwellings or have money in the bank for a rainy day.

The English newspapers are attacking President Harrison as might have been expected. They claim that Harrison knew what Chile had replied to the ultimatum sent her before he sent his message to Congress, and wanted to place himself on record for political effect. St. James Gazette says: "If this is true President Harrison has disgraced and made himself ridiculous."

The meanest act an editor can be guilty of is stealing column after column of local items from its contemporaries and publishing them as original.—Silver State.

There is one thing meaner neighbor, in fact so mean that you probably never thought of it, viz. for a would be editor to burglariously enter the office of another paper and steal a copy before the issue is distributed: 3 o'clock A. M., is about the time chosen for the crime in Carson.

The Delaware barn burners, who are said to have been instigated by a desire to revenge themselves on the Dupont family, and who set fires that endangered the great powder works, have been sentenced for their crimes. The principal has been condemned to ten years in prison, one hour in the pillory, to receive fifteen lashes, and is required to pay $14,000 restitution money and $1,000 fines. The other conspirators have been sentenced to three to eight years imprisonment and fines of $500 each. The punishment is not too severe, for the barn burners willfully endangered many lives from the meanest motive.

Representative Scott (Ill.) has introduced a bill prohibiting the Post-office Department selling stamped envelopes—those bearing the usual request for return to owner after a limited period. "Under the present law," said Mr. Scott, "the Government is a direct competitor with every printing house in the country. It is an unwarrantable trespass by the Government upon the private business of every printer in the United States. Many millions of dollars annually are by this act taken from the printing business. This does not seem fair or just. The Government should take its hands off and not oppress one of the greatest and most important industries of our country."
